DIY_abortion

A Womb of One's Own: Taking Charge of Your Reproduction Without Doctors by Jane Doe

This work was written, published, and distributed by Jane Doe in June 2014.

The original publication can be found here: http://wombofonesown.wordpress.com/
http://wombofonesown.wordpress.com/2014/06/30/a-womb-of-ones-own-complete-text-basic-edition/
CH2: barelyLegal motivations [2015]
A Drone Is Flying Abortion Pills From Germany to Poland This Weekend

By Rachel Browne
June 23, 2015 | 4:43 pm

DURING oral arguments last week before the Supreme Court in Whole Woman’s Health v. Hellerstedt, Justice Elena Kagan noted that she was struck by the clear relationship between abortion restrictions in Texas and the closing of abortion clinics. “It’s almost like the perfect controlled experiment as to the effect of the law, isn’t it?” she said. “It’s like you put the law into effect, 12 clinics closed. You take the law out of effect, they reopen.”

How women respond to these closings, however, is another story.

We do not have large enough surveys to discern behavior in different states or to track how it has changed over time — and in any case, people may not feel comfortable sharing the truth in a survey.

Google searches can help us understand what’s really going on. They show a hidden demand for self-induced abortion reminiscent of the era before Roe v. Wade.

This demand is concentrated in areas where it is most difficult to get an abortion, and it has closely tracked the recent state-level crackdowns on abortion.

In 2015, in the United States, there were about 119,000 searches for the CH2: barelyLegal_Indiana

[ Adam Trowbridge and Jessica Westbrook ]
Divergent Thinking in Emerging Practices

[ Adam Trowbridge and Jessica Westbrook ]
Divergent Thinking in Emerging Practices: currents → Dark Rides / Dark Net

[ Adam Trowbridge and Jessica Westbrook ]
Divergent Thinking in Emerging Practices: currents —> Dark Rides / Dark Net

[ Adam Trowbridge and Jessica Westbrook ]
Divergent Thinking in Emerging Practices: currents → Dark Rides / Dark Net

[ Adam Trowbridge and Jessica Westbrook ]